Pueblo to Pueblo: The Legacy of Southwest Indian Pottery

March 12 through June 25 | Corinthian Hall

In 2010, the Kansas City Museum created Pueblo to Pueblo: The Legacy of Southwest Indian Pottery, a traveling exhibition curated by museum professional and scholar Bill Mercer. Pueblo to Pueblo has traveled to nine venues in the United States over the past several years and will be shown for the first time in Kansas City starting on March 12. The exhibition consists of over 70 objects and supporting materials dating from the mid-nineteenth to the mid-twentieth centuries. Viewers will appreciate and learn about the artists and native cultures of the Southwest pueblos including Acoma, Santo Domingo, Isleta, San Ildefonso, and more.

Pueblo to Pueblo opens to coincide with the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts' (NCECA) 50th annual conference—Makers, Mentors and Milestones—coming to Kansas City from March 16 to 19. For more information on NCECA's Kansas City Conference, visit nceca.net.

Now & Then

March 12 through May 14 | Corinthian Hall

Now & Then showcases contemporary ceramic works that offer insight into the intersections between art, culture, and daily life. This exhibition brings together a selection of graduates and professors from the University of Colorado's Boulder MFA program. Organized and curated by Casey Whittier and Blanca Guerra, Now & Then includes works from Scott Chamberlin, Kimberly Dickey, Rachel Eng, Kelcy Folsom, Julia Galloway, Blanca Guerra, Joshua Paul Hebbert, Janice Jakielski, Stephanie Kantor, Linda Lopez, Mathew McConnell, Alia Paltos, Joanna Powell, Jeanne Quinn, Annie Strader, Casey Whittier, and Emily Schroeder Willis.

The Kansas City Museum is an exhibition venue for Now & Then, which is being presented in conjunction with NCECA.

The opening reception for Pueblo to Pueblo and Now & Then is on March 18 from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. at the Kansas City Museum.

Re:Dreaming at the Kansas City Museum

Thursday, April 7 | 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. | Carriage House

Free | RSVP Required

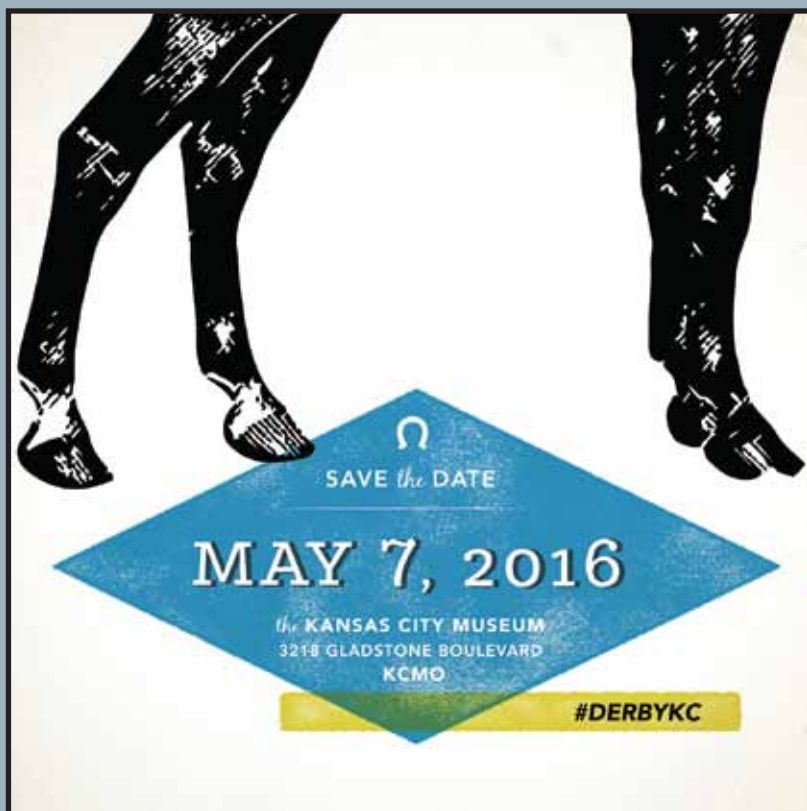

The Kansas City Museum hosts an interactive after-hours event where citizens of Kansas City will be invited to dream for themselves, their neighborhoods, and their city. Attendees will mingle and mill about the first floor of the Carriage House, finding a different activity presented in each room to record their versions of the American Dream and specifically, their dreams for Kansas City. Light refreshments will be provided. The event partners with Re:Dream, a KCPT-led nationwide series about opportunities, obstacles, and the American dream.
